To the Editor of THE TIMES: I thank you for space to congratulate the Hon. Caleb Powers and other Christian and human hearted people, who are trying to save the life of a negro woman under sentence of death. This woman was under the influence of brain storm at the time she killed or brain shorm at the time she arrived the man she loved. She was illiterate, when she married. Protests Against Hanging.

To the Editor of THE TIMES:

I want to raise my voice against critics, whose sentences I have viewed in your Times understood the temptation which colored women have to go through from time to time, with their husbands they would take a different stand upon the hanging of Mattie Lomax. Especially do I refer to John E. Prospeir, who seems to uphold the judge as well as the jury for pronouncing the sentence.

Treading.

We, "the people," claim to be the most enlightened and law-abiding nation on earth. How can we fairly hold such claim unless we allow our law officers to execute the penalties imposed on our criminals. I am not at all in favor of capital punishment, but when a law is made by a vote of a majority of our people, or our representatives. I believe it should be enforced to the fullest extent, and if our lawmakers

There are many bad laws in this country as well as good ones, and there are many good judges, and there are many good judges, and there are many good judges, and there are some careless ones. The verdict of the jury, according to law, does not at all times stand for justice; if it did we would not have to have the highest tribunal of the United States to review cases and render different decisions or reverse the verdict of both the judge cision are showing disloyalty to the Strong Resolution of philanthropic, correctional, and charitable service, today expressed himself as opposed to the death sentence on Mattle E. Lomax, who has been condemned to die on the gallows on July 21 for the murder of her husband or on anyone else.

Mr. Edson declared himself doubly opposed to capital punishment when the victim is a woman, either white or black. His statement, published herewith, is of particular interest because of Mr. Edson's

I trust that every organization, no matter of what description, will help to stay the execution of Mattie Lomax, and that the President of these United States will not sit quietly without letting the people of the District know where he stands on this subject. Let us hear from him before we go further into the subject. Let every citizen in this city help Mrs. Gore and Representative Powers to do all they can to raise this stain from the high standard of the Capital city of the Nation.

Does Not See "Disgrace."

To the Editor of THE TIMES: Lest enthusiasm should carry you into believing, like one religious sect, that everybody thinks as you do, allow the to express my opinion that there is no "disgrace" coming to the city of Washington on account of the execution of any low or guilty persons; the disgrace, if any, being in the fact that

Letters from Times readers interested in the Lomax case continue to be received by this newspaper. Some of those which arrived this morning are as follows:

To the Editor of THE TIMES:

I am a reader of The Times, and have been following your noble efforts in the case of Mattle E. Lomax. I wish to say I do not believe in capital punishment, and do not think it prevents crime. I will cite a case that occurred in our city which I think proves my contention.

A man was found murdered in what was then called the Armory square, between Sixth and Seventh streets southwest, now the Mall. He was identified as a Mr. Hahn, a cattle drover from Hagerstown. A colored man by the name of William Williams was arrested and proved to be the murderer, and was hanged in the old jail. Fourth and G streets northwest.
